Keep McClelland Here – Secure Its Future for Generations to Come

For more than 55 years, McClelland Sculpture Park + Gallery has been a much-loved cultural organisation, bringing together art, nature and community.

But its future is at risk due to ongoing underfunding. Despite welcoming 60,000 visitors annually, McClelland receives just $2 in government funding per visitor, compared with $20–$30 for similar institutions.

With Council funding halved and Victorian Government operational funding ending from 2028, urgent action is needed.

We're calling on all levels of government to secure $750,000 in annual funding and protect McClelland for future generations.

Losing McClelland means losing more than a gallery — it means losing a vital part of our community, culture and creative future.
